December's Budget is threatening to be one of the worst yet.

Plans to increase fees to €3000 as well as proposed cuts to the maintenance grant have been leaked. Since the inception of the free fees scheme, the "registration fee" has increased significantly almost every year and that is to resist against all cuts, education included, This requires the mobilisation of Irish students and teachers en masse, as a part of the wider anti-austerity movement.

There is only one way to stop this Government in their tracks

What, do tax-boycott campaigns and trade unions have in common with students?

Besides the fact that students who graduate will then be part of the labour force, fee increases are just the uniquely student flavor of austerity, and to defeat these we must work with others who face similar difficulties.

Firstly, we should march alongside them on 24th of November to stand alongside others resisting cuts in the education sector, and secondly build a sense of solidarity between trade and student unions and to place student struggles within the wider anti-austerity movement.

So, despite the fact that TCDSU council recently defeated a motion calling for information about the anti-austerity march to be provided to students (unlike their counterparts in UCD and NUIM), we are asking any students or staff who believe in free education to get involved and join the education bloc on November 24th, as a first step in building a cross-society movement against student fee increases and austerity measures.
